Letters from Algiers, May 5.

Hamburgh, March 18. We have received from Algiers he following interesting and renarkable accounts:

The present D.y, Houssin, is a good min; he was one of the four ninisters, master of the horse, or is they call him, "Chodgia de Ca-vallos," and, on the death of the ate tyrant, was elected by the D van, which has not been the case for these 20 years, as the six Pachas, efore Aly, were murdered by the rebellious soldiery. This election, which to k pl. co in the most peaceful and orderly manner, has been at tended with no bloodshed, nor has any one been banished; on the other hand, several individuals who were panished under Omar Pacha, asdisturbers of the peace, are recalled and have obtained important offices. Time must show whether these persons will take warning from the lesson they have already received, or will set on foot new conspiracies. The 1st of March, this year, the day of Aiy Pacha's death, will be ever memorable in the annals of Algiers That tyrant had still many ruinous projects and cruelties in contemplation, which were to have been shortly carried into effect. Thus there was found in his pocket book the following memorandum, written by himself: "The daughter of the English consu, a very pretty and sensible gir, 15 years old, and the sister of the Dutch consul, who is handsome and accomplished, shall be carried by force out of their houses, compelled to change their religion, and to be the Dey's mistresses. The daughter of the Spanish consul, who is not so handsome, shalbe watch d and kept in reserve. The English consul, the Spanish corsul, and a Jew, named Bensamon, who is under English protection, who had been already compelled to assume the turban, shall be beheaded.

The day for the execution of this horrid plan was not yet fixed. The Dey se med to waver in his mind, and disposed to wait, sill he saw whether the consuls would submit to have their houses (which accord-in the treaties are to be consi-personages overelf-placed his hat on the table, dered as harems) broken into and plundered, or whether they would make any resistance; in this he make any resistance; in this he case they were to be cut to pictic. He saw clearly that such equeltic would not pass without notice, as said often, "The christians will pabably come and bombard me a hule but I shall find meams to make my

The plague still carries off between 50 and 60 persons daily.

Letter from Algiers, April 6.

Since the death of Aly, thereing been only one execution here; it was that of his brother-in-law, an Arthof the name of Hadgi Mustaphi and his brother, a youch of 13 year of age; they were both tortured to 14 days, in various ways, got a sleep, and Hadgi was most severed bastinadoed. He received find 1000 strokes, and after that 4 or 51 daily.—After he had received 4.51 in strokes, in this manner, he was sent home, where he died two 44 after, and his brother who wasteed to in the same manner shortly if the tree. The Tarks feared this family were much, and have therefore to tarpated it.

We doily see here drunken arms Turks, in troops of 6 or 12 no roving about the city and the earl rons, to plunder the poor Arabs wi are attacked by the plague.

The plague has not increase here, but it has spread towards the west, and extended to the two larg towns of Oran and Mascara. The whole territory of Algiers suit under this dreadful disease; there are plenty of people to be seen in the streets. Upon a little excurs on which I made on norseback, met with an incredible number : graves, both on the highways and the fields.
